RUBBER

BELTING.

Important to all who use Belting.

We have just patented a new article in Rubber Belting which is sold under the name of GIANT BELTING.

This Belting is made up with the usual plies of Duck and Rubber, and, before putting on the outside cover, it is stitched in seams one inch apart with cotton cord, which has a pulling strength of fifty pounds. It is then stretched in its plastic state, drawing the plies so close together, that with the strong cord with which it is stitched material strength is added to the belt, and the stitches are so drawn into the plastic rubber, that they cannot wear off on the outside. The outside cover is then put on seamless, so that it cannot open, as is the case of Rubber Belting made in the ordinary way, and the plies being so firmly stitched, as well as frictioned together, that the belt cannot separate as many belts made in the old way will, after being used for a time, especially when run at a great speed or in damp places.

We particularly call the attention of all Mill owners to this Belt as being in the end the cheapest belt they can buy, while the first cost is only about ten per cent more than belting made in the ordinary way. We believe it will wear more than double the length of time. For heavy main belts you will find it superior to anything made. It is also superior for Endless Belts, as we stitch the splice in such a way that it cannot separate.

Try Our Giant Belt. We will Warrant Satisfaction.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.

The indications for New England to-day are fair weather, followed by local rains, variable winds, shifting to southerly, falling barometer and stationary or rising temperature.

The weather bulletin states that a storm of considerable energy is central in the Mississippi valley, and moving eastward. The temperature has fallen in the New England and Gulf States, and has risen slightly in the Ohio valley, Lake region, Mississippi and Missouri valleys. Local rains have fallen in Tennessee, the Ohio, Mississippi and Missouri valleys, Southwesterly winds prevail in Tennessee, the Ohio valley, and the Lower Lake region, and southerly winds in the Gulf States. Elsewhere the winds are variable. Local rains are indicated on Wednesday in New England and the Middle Atlantic States, followed by clearing weather. Clearing weather is indicated for the Lake region, Tennessee and Ohio valley on Wednesday.

LATEST MARINE NEWS.

Schooner M. C. Sproul's Collision—Statement of Steamer Katahdin's Captain.

BOSTON, Oct. 1.—Captain Curtis, commanding steamer Katahdin, has forwarded the appended report upon the collision of his steamer with schooner M. C. Sproul on the morning of September 29th, to the local United States inspector of steam vessels at this port:

Steamer Kathadin, Sept. 28, 1883, was bound from Monhegan to Boston. The night was very dark and with a very bad horizon. There was a large fleet of fishermen and coasters together and most of them had bright lights. At 1 a. m Saturday, Sept. 29, the bow lookout reported three-lights on our port bow and went to cross the decks to the starboard side when he heard some one on the port bow crying out "keep off." When he got on the port side saw a schooner's sails but no lights. The pilot then slowed the boat and ported his wheel, and afterward rung the bells to stop and back the boat. At 1 03 a. m. we struck the schooner M. C. Sproul of Bristol, Maine, amidship, and the schooner being light filled and rolled over on her broadside. We lowered a boat and took the crew off, and it being very dark thought it best not to lay by the schooner any longer, so started on our course at 1.55 a. m. Afterward found the steamer's cut-water was twisted out of shape, but the damage was slight and the expense for repairing the same will not exceed ninety dollars.

Dwelling House Struck by Lightning and Destroyed.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Oct. 1.—The dwelling house at York, owned by Theodore Weare, Jr., landlord of the Cliff House, at Bald Head Cliff, York Beach, was struck by lightning on Saturday night, and burned, together with a considerable part of its contents. Loss about $1,200; insured for $400.

Mysterious Disappearance.

FARMINGTON, Oct. 1.—William H. Kennedy, son of Alexander Kennedy of Strong, 18 years old, of good habits and sound mind, mysteriously disappeared from home last Thursday. Large parties were searching the woods Saturday, Sunday and to-day, yet no trace of him has yet been discovered. There is considerable excitement over his disappearance.

Dr. N. T. True of Bethel, writes to the Gorham Mountaineer as follows: The nerves of motion in my left side are paralyzed. The left arm only partially so, as I can with ease raise my hand to my face. The paralysis extends from the base of the spine to my shoulders. Brain and right side are unaffected. My physician assures me that I shall recover the use of my limbs.

Alfred Johnson, a young man from Boston, about 18 years old, committed, last Monday, a terrible assault upon a little girl near Calais, named McLaughlin. He was pursued and captured by excited men, at whose hands he narrowly escaped hanging. The girl, who was about 12 years of age, was found tied to a tree, her person bearing marks of fiendish usage, she identified Johnson, who at first denied the crime, but afterwards confessed.

THE STODDARD LECTURES.

Brilliant Opening of the Season in Brooklyn, N. Y.

(Special Despatch to the Press.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—The Stoddard lecture season opened very auspiciously tonight at the Academy of Music, Brooklyn. Mr. Stoddard gave for the first time his illustrated lecture on Madrid and Lisbon before an audience of over two thousand. The speaker was enthusiastically welcomed by his Brooklyn friends, with whom he is very popular. The lecture was greatly admired and was admirably illustrated with views so fine as to call forth long and loud applause. The entire occasion was a gratifying success.

SPORTING.

The Pittsburg Regatta—Exciting Races at the Closing Day—Teemer Wins the Professional Race.

HULTON, Penn., Oct. 1.—The four oared crews in Saturday's regatta got away promptly and in good form when the word was given, the Bostons leading, the Queen City a close second, Mutuals third, and the Celtics in the rear. The Queen City closed the gap, and turned the buoy ahead of the Bostons by half a length, rowing over the course in 10 minutes. The Mutuals held third place, with the Celtics 10 lengths behind. At the 2½ mile stake the Bostons had regained the lead and held it by three lengths. The Celtics lost all heart, and dropped 30 lengths behind the Mutuals. The struggle between the Bostons and Queen City was a magnificent one, but the Bostons increased the gap, and won by seven lengths in 19.05.

The final heat of the professionals consolation race was next called. Riley, Ten Eyck, Lee, Plaisted, Priddy, and Briceland responded. At the start Lee took the lead, and at the three-quarter point Briceland was second, pulling manfully for first place and spurting frequently. Riley was third, one length behind with Ten Eyck, Plaisted and Priddy following. At the turning buoy the positions were materially changed. Ten Eyck spurted and pulled past the front, passing Lee and Briceland. Priddy turned the buoy three lengths behind Ten Eyck. Lee made a mistake in turning the buoy and stopped rowing. At the three-quarter point, coming up, Ten Eyck was two lengths ahead of Priddy, with Riley third, Briceland fourth and Plaisted fifth. Ten Eyck crossed the line first, with Priddy one length behind, Riley and Briceland following. Ten Eyck's time was 21m. 55s. Several of the boats in the last race were almost swamped, being filled with water, rendering it impossible to make good time.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 1.—The veteran race in the regatta was rowed today. On the word being given Faulkner sprang to the front at once with Siebert second, Taylor third, and Coulter fourth. Faulkner kept the lead over the entire course and won easily by three lengths. Time 22.46.

The contestants for the professional race which was the final one of the regatta then came out. When the start was made Conley took the lead, closely followed by Ross, with Teemer, Hosmer and Hamm bringing up the rear in the order named. At the three-quarters stake Hamm passed the others and came up almost even with Conley, and in this order the buoy was turned, the mile and a half being made in 8.59. On the home stretch Hamm spurted and went to the front, but Teemer quickly overtook him, and for the last three-quarters the race was beteween these two. Near the finish Teemer took the lead and came in the winner by four lengths; time 20.11. Hosmer's boat sprang a leak at the buoy and he stopped rowing.

Annual Industries of the United States.

A circular is being issued from the Department of Agriculture stating a convention of representatives of all classes interested in the animal industries of the United States will be held in Chicago, Thursday and Friday, Nov. 15 and 16, 1883, for conference concerning contagious diseases among our domestic animals. Agricultural, live stock and dairy associations are invited to send representatives and all persons interested in breeding, rearing, transporting, importing or exporting any class of farm animals will be welcomed to the convention.

Miscellaneous.

Secretary Chandler has directed Admiral Cooper to put the Tennessee in the dry dock at New York for repairs. It is said that the injuries which she sustained in the gale and in running ashore are a consequence of not employing a pilot. It will cost about $30,000 to put her in seaworthy condition.

Secretary Lincoln left Washington Saturday night for Sandusky, Ohio to spend a few days near there.

The debt statement issued Monday shows a decrease of the public debt during September to be $14,707,219.11. Decrease of the debt since June, 30, $29,273,671.50.

THE INDIANS.

Threatened Trouble with Chippewas—Settlers Ask for Military Protection.

CHICAGO, October 1.—At St. John, in the Turtle Mountain settlement, the threatened troubles between Little Shell, chief of the Chippewa Indians, and the government surveyors sent to define the boundaries of the restricted reservation have assumed a serious aspect. The settlers have requested Commandant Conrad to send troops from Totten for their protection. An official telegram from Washington authorizes Cortez Fessenden, surveyor general of Dakota, to investigate and adjust the difficulty. Little Shell promises not to interfere with the survey but is however reinforcing his band by lodges of Crees from the Woody Mountains. He has married into the Cree nation and wants them to secure lands on the reservation and distribute part of the Congressional appropriation of $10,000, to which none but full blooded Chippewas have legal claims.

THE SENATE COMMITTEE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Mr. Partridge, of the Produce Exchange, testified today before the Senate sub-committee on labor and education as to corners, or gambling as he characterized it, on the exchange. Nearly 2000 of 3000 members of the exchange, he said, were gamblers, and the law of supply and demand had nothing to do with this speculation.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Fraudulent Pension Agent.

BOSTON, Oct. 1.—In the United States Commissioners Court, today, Francis H. Swift of New Bedford was held in $1000 for further examination on the 9th of October on a charge of making false affidavits for the purpose of procuring pensions for soldiers.

National Cotton Planters' Association.

VICKSBURG, Oct. 1.—The National Cotton Planters' Association of America will hold its convention in Vicksburg on the 21st of November, instead of the 14th as previously published. The Governors of the cotton manufacturing States of New England as well as the Governors of the cotton growing States have been officially requested to appoint two delegates from each county of their respective States. A letter has also been written inviting the participation of all the cotton exchanges. These measures secure a thoroughly representative convention of the entire cotton producing, handling and manufacturing interests of the Union.

AN ARCHBISHOP'S DEBTS.

Decision of an Ohio Court Relating to the late Archbishop Purcell.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 1.—A decision was rendered to-day in the case of J. B. Mannix, assignee of J. B. Purcell et al. on an action by the assignee to obtain judgment of the court as to liabilities of the diocese and church property to pay debts of the late Archbishop Purcell. Fourteen pieces of property held by the Archbishop were selected for this trial as being representative of all. Nine of these were churches, and the others were the cathedral, including the Arch Episcopal residence and school, St. Mary's seminary, Cumminsville orphan asylum and St. Joseph's cemetery, old and new. The court found that in the case of the church that title was in the Archbishop by reason of the rules of the church, which in such case as this, the court is bound to regard; that the Archbishop held the title only as trustee for the uses of the congregation, and that property so held could not be subjected to payment of debts contracted by the Archbishop; but the churches were liable to the assignee for money advanced to them by Purcell. As to the cathedral and cathedral school they were erected by the Archbishop and paid for directly from funds placed in his hands except about $60,000 which was raised by subscription. The Court held that although the Archbishop held the property in trust, as he did other churches, yet tothe extent of the amount he had advanced to them the assignee was entitled to recover the same with interest for the benefit of creditors. The orphan asylum at Cumminsville was also decided a trust not subject to sale and a mortgage on it given by Archbishop Purcell to secure a creditor was declared of no binding force. The same view was taken as to St. Mary's seminary with an order for reference to a master to ascertain if the Archbishop had made advances to this property. As to the cemeteries, a majority of the Court held they were not dedicated to the public; that consecration did not amount to dedication, and that such portions as were not sold for burial lots could be sold for the benefit of creditors. Judge Johnston dissented as to the property referred to a master for an accounting and dissented wholly from the view that the cemeteries were not dedicated to the public and were held in trust by the Archbishop.

WINGED SMUGGLERS.

An Ingenious Trick of Diamond Merchants—$700,000 in Value Transported by Carrier Pigeons.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Capt. Donohue, the customs officer at Ogdensburg, N. Y., has unearthed an extensive scheme of smuggling. On Wednesday, Sept. 5, J. H. Clavering, a young farmer living near Rensselaer Falls, 18 miles from Ogdensburg, brought into Capt. Donohue's office a small package of diamonds secured in a quill. He also brought with him a pigeon filled with bird shot. He explained that he had shot the bird that morning. On examining his prize the young man found attached to the left leg a small roll, securely tied with silk. Investigation showed this to be the large part of a turkey's feather filled with glistening stones. These he believed were diamonds. An expert jeweller, after careful examination, pronounced the stones genuine diamonds. A bird fancier declared that the bird was a carrier, or homing pigeon. Capt. Donohue immediately set out to discover and arrest the smugglers, but without success. It is believed that the frauds have been carried on for the past two years, as the pigeons, in order to be thoroughly trained to return home, must be raised on the premises. The scheme, as understood, was to despatch about once a week or ten days a covey of 12 or 15 pigeons, loaded with diamonds. It is estimated that the total amount smuggled is between $700,000 and $800,000, and the loss to the government, is 10 per cent. of this amount, the present duty on diamonds. The three lots of stones captured are estimated to be worth $1,100.

FIRES.

Farm Buildings Burned by Lightning.

ATHOL, Mass., Sept. 30.—The farm buildings of Benjamin E. Flagg, near Partridgeville, were struck by lightning, during a heavy thunder shower last night, and were burned to the ground, together with a horse, cow, pigs, hens, etc. Loss from $1200 to $1500.

Freaks of a Thunderbolt—Havoc in a New Hampshire Town—A Lady Killed in Her Bed.

NASHUA, Oct. 1.—During a heavy thunder storm, Saturday night, lightning struck the residence of Henry S. Wheeler, in Amherst. The bolt passed into a bedroom where Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler were sleeping, and struck the bed killing the woman instantly, setting fire to the bed and wrecking the house. Mr. Wheeler was unable to find water handily, and put out the burning bed with milk. Lightning also struck his store, and the Court-house in Amherst, doing considerable damage.

In Nashua it shattered several trees on Amherst street.

Catholic Cathedral Ruined.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 1.—The fire at St. John's Catholic church last night broke out again after midnight and continued to burn until 3 o'clock. The whole building was gutted, sanctuary furniture destroyed and organ ruined. Most of the valuable vestments and church vessels were saved. The church is ruined. The loss is not yet ascertained. Crowds of women are gathered about the edifice weeping.

ANOTHER CHAPTER

In the History of Railroad Horrors—Two Trains Telescoped—Two Passengers Killed and Several Injured.

UTICA, N. Y., Oct. 1.—A despatch to the Observer from Fort Plain says the train that left Utica about 11 o'clock collided with a train from Fort Plain, three miles from here, telescoping each and making a complete wreck of both, the engines standing upright. It is reported that six persons were killed and several wounded. None of the passengers from Utica were injured.

[LATER.]

Two passenger trains on the West Shore Railroad collided between St. Johnsville and Fort Plain, at 1 p. m. today. Two engines, two baggage cars and one smoking car were completely wrecked. Michael Lyons of Utica, engineer of the east-bound train, was instantly killed; James W. Hillock of Ephratah, a passenger on the west-bound train, was also instantly killed; Mr. Cool of Ephratah had his skull fractured and will probably die. About twenty others living in this vicinity were slightly injured.

A Chinese Burial.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—Hog Chuck, a Chinaman, who died in the almshouse on Wednesday last, was buried yesterday with interesting ceremonies. The bottom of the casket was filled with Chinese coins, and the body was covered with a peculiar Chinese perforated paper with lettering on it. At the grave the Rev Mr. Lyle repeated the Lord's prayer in Chinese and English, after which a number of ribbons which were bound about the body were removed and thrown upon the coffin. The casket was then lowered, and while the ground was being shovelled upon it the Celestials cast meats, rice, tea, baked dough, a roast chicken and a black bottle among the dirt. On the way to the grave a Chinaman seated beside the driver threw rice and paper along the ground traversed. Ten thousand people witnessed the ceremonies at the grave. It was intended to have had some service in the Church of the Epiphany (Episcopal), but the crowd was so great that it was impossible to get into the church. Mayor King refused to allow the New York Chinese band to go into the procession, and the police stopped the fire ceremonies in front of the house from which the deceased was taken.

Of Interest to Newspaper Publishers.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Inquiries from many persons as to whether they could be compelled to pay for newspapers sent to their address without authority have called for the following ruling from the postoffice department:

"The liability of a party to pay for newspapers must be determined by rules applicable to other contracts. When a publisher without a request from a party, either expressed or implied, sends a paper, the mere fact that the party addressed takes that paper from the postoffice does not of itself create a liability to pay for it. It takes two to make a contract and one party without the consent of the other cannot make him his debtor."

Two Cases of Murder in Mississippi.

SUMMIT, Miss., Oct. 1.—A. J. Whitington, Sheriff of Amite county, was stabbed twice in the back at Liberty, Saturday and killed, by Eugene McElwee. The trouble grew out of politics. After the murder McElwee was surrounded by a crowd, one of whom shot him, from the effects of which he died in ten minutes. Both parties were Democrats and highly connected.

Chicago News Dealers Organizing.

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—The newspaper route owners of this city held a meeting yesterday to form an association for the protection of their interests. The reduction in the price of New York papers was not touched upon, but the present move is regarded as a preliminary step for combined action on the part of route owners in case a break occurs in the price of local papers.

KING ALFONSO IN PARIS.

Great Indignation Over His Reception—The Paris Press Denounce It—Demonstrations in Madrid.

MADRID, Oct. 1.—King Alfonso's reception in Paris created a painful impression here, and much indignation is expressed in political circles. The Correspondencia says the government is greatly concerned by the want of energy shown by the French Cabinet. The conduct of the French government will oblige Spain to enter into a diplomatic correspondence with France. It is rumored that the government is disposed to advise the King to return to Spain forthwith, before the demonstrations are continued. Telegrams from Paris tend to confirm the rumor that King Alfonso will quit Paris at once. It is believed that Spain will address a note to France, demanding the punishment of the authors of the demonstrations.

Bands of people paraded the streets yesterday evening, insulted Frenchmen and openly threatened the French embassy. The police, however, prevented any violence from being perpetrated. Senor Moret at a meeting of the Democratic Club declared that the insults offered to the King affected the whole Spanish nation, which he declared would stand by the King. His utterances were received with loud cheering. Marshal Serrano has telegraphed to Senor Canovas del Castillo that the cause of monarchy demanded his presence in Madrid. The officers of the garrison also held a meeting, at which strong speeches against France were delivered. The German government will make a diplomatic remonstrance at the indignities to which the Spanish King was subjected. The Radicals violently attack President Grevy and Prime Minister Ferry for the course they have pursued in the matter. The Cabinet is divided in opinion as to its policy.

PARIS, Oct. 1.—Alarming reports prevail here that the Spanish Cabinet will demand that the French government shall make a public apology for the insults offered to King Alfonso.

King Alfonso will reach the Spanish frontier at midnight. General Pittie, secretary of President Grevy, and Duc de Fernan Nunez, the Spanish ambassador to France, escorted the King to the railway station. The King made an excellent impression upon the guests at the banquet at the Elysee. President Grevy in referring thereto said he never expected to meet so much good sense, dignity and coolness in so young a sovereign.

The Temps, referring to the hostile reception by the populace, says:

"The regret and patriotic humiliation occasioned to all good citizens by the events of yesterday should not cause us to exaggerate the importance of this melancholy manifestation. The few thousands who are the authors of this scandal are a band of brawlers who are always the same—who whistle and stamp their feet at public meetings, and who treated MM. Thiers and Gambetta in a manner similar to that in which they treated King Alfonso, who no more respect the interests and dignity of France than they do the honor of other nations. We trust that other nations, especially Spain, will not regard the errors of a few fanatics as expressing the sentiments of France."

The Gaulois says the demonstration was worse than a mistake—it was a crime. The Clairen describes it as an act of savagery, and a disgrace to the country. The Dix-Neuvieme Siecle regrets the hostile reception. It would have preferred that King Alfonso had traversed Paris incognito. "If he remains a few days among us," it says, "the only duty of the people of Paris is to be strictly polite." The Rappel says the attitude of Parisians clearly proved that they viewed with discontent the ultra official character of King Alfonso's reception after the occurrence of incidents which appeared rather to have been overwrought that it should pursue at least a circumspect course during his majesty's visit. L'Intransigeant says Spain will know that in King Alfonso it was not a Spaniard who was hooted, but a German.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—The Paris correspondent of the Times says that King Alfonso is perfectly satisfied of the good faith of Prime Minister Ferry as representing the French government, and he does not admit for a moment that the spirit shown on Saturday by the mob, which was excited by false statements of anarchist agitators, represents the French nation. In abridging his stay in Paris by one-half the time intended the King desires to diminish the difficulties that have arisen from his visit.

President Grevy went to the depot reluctantly on Saturday to greet King Alfonso, but if his manner appeared cold his words were cordial.

The Madrid correspondent of the Times says the hostile reception accorded to King Alfonso in Paris has considerably increased his prestige at home.

MADRID, Oct. 1.—Republican papers urge the Spanish people to be calm and and prudent in order to avoid playing into the hands of Bismarck. At a meeting of the Dynastic Left to-day, after a speech by Senor Morel favoring the project, it was resolved to organize a great public demonstration in honor of the King on his arrival here. The military chiefs of this city also passed resolutions of a similar tenor.

The Queen and family returned from La Granja this afternoon and were greeted with an ovation by the populace. Streets from the depot to the palace were thronged with carriages and pedestrians, and an enormous crowd filled the depot, including many officers of the garrison. The Queen and Princesses were greatly cheered and shouts were raised, "Long live the King and Queen!" and occasional cries hostile to France were heard. The Queen appeared twice on the balcony of the palace in response to plaudits of the multitude. A short time afterwards a group of excited youths went in the direction of the French embassy, crying "Long live the Uhlan King; down with the French!" but dispersed on seeing that the embassy was protected by a strong body of police. A number of people made a friendly demonstration in front of the German legation. Placards were posted in various parts of the city violently attacking France.

A meeting of the principal French residents of Madrid was held, at which the insult to King Alfonso was strongly condemned and cordial sympathy with Spain expressed.

The California Powder Explosion.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—The explosion in the California Powder Works, situated near Pirole, on the Central Pacific Railroad, on Friday, took place in the mixing room. The immediate cause will never, probably, be known, as all those engaged in the room, comprising 40 Chinamen and one white overseer, were blown to atoms. Scraps of their bodies are being picked up in different directions at a distance of a quarter of a mile from the scene of the disaster. The only white man killed was the overseer of the mixing rooms. This makes the third explosion in these works, which are reckoned among the largest on the coast, and which employ 20 white men and 135 Chinamen.

GENERAL NEWS.

The heavy rains have given sufficient water power to the different mills of Manchester, N. H., which have been idle some weeks. They started up yesterday morning.

At an individual clay pigeon match in Worcester, Mass., yesterday for the State championship, H. W. Eager of Marlboro scored 43, and E. S. Ford of Springfield.

At Lexington, Ky., on Sunday, a wind storm blew down the Cincinnati Southern Railroad Company's engine house and took off the roofs of several buildings. No lives were lost.

Colman Brothers, wholesale clothing, New York and San Francisco, have failed. Liabilities estimated at over $300,000.

The rush for the new two-cent postage stamps in New York city was entirely unprecedented. In one hour yesterday morning 500,000 of these stamps were sold at wholesale at the windows of the general post office.

Charles Webster, a young man working for D. H. Morse of West Randolph, Vt., shot himself Sunday evening and died immediately. Disappointment in love was the alleged cause. Insanity is hereditary in his family.

There was an unusual rush for the new two-cent postage stamps in Chicago, yesterday, and up to noon 350,000 had been sold.

The town of Pawtucket, R. I., the largest town in the county, yesterday voted for the second time to reject a city charter, by 400 majority.

St. John Lodge, F. and A. M., of Boston, celebrated the 150th anniversary of its organization as a Masonic body, last night.

Fire last night in Colenburg & Vaupil's piano factory, in West 23d street, New York, caused a loss of $21,500.

The city council of Worcester, Mass., last night voted to increase the salary of the mayor from $1500 to $2500, to take effect January 1, 1884, and to send the city engineer to Europe to investigate the plans followed there in the treatment of sewerage.

It is understood that R. Stockett Matthews will decline the nomination for attorney general which was given him by acclamation by the Maryland Republican convention on Thursday last. His extensive practice and professional engagements require all his time.

Patrick Ryan was arrested in New York yesterday on a charge of robbing a post office in Milford, Conn. This is the first in a series of arrests to follow and will end in the breaking up of a gang that has been operating in Massachusetts and Connecticut, where over thirty offices have been robbed.

The jury in the Willetts murder case, on trial at Glen Falls, N. Y., came in yesterday afternoon with a verdict of not guilty.

KNOW-NOTHING VANDALISM.

Sinking a Marble Block Presented to this Country by Pius IX. for the Washington Monument—The True Story.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—It is believed by many that the dredgers now at work in the Potomac river improving the flats may find the marble block presented to this country by Pope Pius IX. for the Washington monument, which was stolen during the know-nothing excitement in 1854 and thrown overboard. The Post to-day prints the following account of the affair, as related by one of three survivors of the nine who committed the act of vandalism:

Nine of us did the job on Sunday night, the 5th of March, 1854. We attended a meeting of the know-nothing order, to which we all belonged, on the Tuesday night previous. There was a good deal of speaking going on about the shame of having a stone from any king or potentate inserted in the monument of a man who had fought against royal tyranny, and finally it was agreed that nine men should be selected by lot to destroy the stone. I got one of the prizes. Between 11 and 12 o'clock on the Sunday night following we went over to the monument. It was pretty dark, but two of us were blacked in the face and detailed to look after the watchman in the box. One of the men went up to the box, looked in, and found the watchman reading by a lamp. He placed his pistol in the hole, and told him to keep his seat, and he would not be harmed. The other man tied a rope securely about the box. The man with the pistol staid there until our return. The other one helped us in the work of getting the stone away. It was about four feet by eleven feet in size, of a peculiar kind of White Italian marble, striped, and with a Latin inscription in gilt letters on it. With some skids, bars and blocks, which we found on the ground, we rolled it from where it was lying in an old shed at the foot of the monument down the hill to a scow that was moored in the canal basin, now known as Babcock's lake. After some little trouble we got it safely on board and started out of the basin into the river and down the Washington channel until within about fifteen yards of the Long Bridge draw. While on the way down we chipped a piece off one corner of the stone, about the size of two bricks, with a sledge hammer, each taking a small piece. When we got near the bridge a confederate gave us a signal that all was O. K., by swinging a red lantern from the bridge. We then eased the stone over the side of the scow, and away it went with a splash to the bottom of the river. We then went back in the scow to the monument, relieved the man who was standing guard over the watchman, cut the rope around the watch-box quietly, and scattered in different directions for our homes. That is the true story of the whole transaction. The stone has never been found to this day, but I guess the dredgers will get it when they commence to deepen that part of the river.

ST. ALBANS TRUST COMPANY.

Report of the Committee of the Depositors.

ST. ALBANS, Oct 1.—The Depositors' Committee, consisting of Messrs. C. Druon, H. M. Stevens, G. S. Fassett, Benj. Fairchild and Philip Horskin, have made a thorough investigation of the Trust Company's books, and come out with a detailed statement full of figures, which show the personal estate of the company fund to amount to $120,700.60, capital and interest; real estate, capital and interest, $30,726 20; mortgage loans, $26,210 90; personal notes, $466,531.36; collaterals, $55,370.71; total amount of assets, $709,545.87; worthless paper, $15,000. Of the balance of assets, $694,545.87, the committee say they consider $193,000 perfectly good, and $501,545.87 as doubtful. If all doubtful assets could be collected depositors would be paid in full, and if half could be realized on there would be good assets enough to pay seventy-five cents on the dollar if there are no preferred claims. The committee say insane persons, minors and married women must come in for their full share first, probably, and it is not known at present how much money it would take to satisfy such claims. They have some reason to

The Ohio Campaign.

The Ohio election will occur a week from to-day, and until that time politics will be lively in that State as indeed they have been for a month past. The vote is expected to be the largest ever cast. One cause of this extraordinary interest being the fact that two constitutional amendments affecting the liquor traffic are to be voted upon, and the moral elements of the population have been stirred up irrespective of party to make a record on the issue. The last legislature submitted to the popular vote two amendments of the constitution as follows:

First. "The General Assembly shall regulate the traffic in intoxicating liquors so as to provide against evils resulting therefrom, and its power to levy taxes or assessments thereon is not limited by any provision of the constitution."

Second. "The manufacture of and traffic in intoxicating liquors, to be used as a beverage are forever prohibited, and the General Assembly shall provide by law for the enforcement of this provision."

At present the constitution forbids licensing the sale of liquors, a provision which has stood in the way of efficient regulation of the traffic. The first amenment is designed to give the legislature the power it is now without. The second amendment was submitted to give the prohibitionists a chance to show their strength, but with little expectation that it would have formidable support. The latest advices however indicate that it will receive a great vote and its adoption is not now regarded as an impossibility. Its friends were early in the field and with an efficient organization and plenty of speakers, they have worked for this one object. A prohibition ticket for State officers was nominated but that has been generally neglected. The amendment is the issue upon which all the strength of the prohibition party has been spent and they solicit votes for it without regard to the political preferences of the voters. They will present at the polls the tickets of all the political parties in connection with votes for the amendment, and are comparatively indifferent as to what candidates are voted for if the amendment is supported.

The churches and the temperance organizations have cooperated to urge the second amendment upon the attention of the people. For some time there has been an average of 70 second-amendment meetings daily in the State, and it is said that during this last week there will be not far from three hundred such meetings daily. This far exceeds the number of party meetings although these will be unusually numerous. In almost all the country towns the ladies are organized to distribute second-amendment tickets at the polls and it is seriously considered whether they will not also attend the polls in the cities. It is really a great effort that is making and a wonderful degree of enthusiasm has been aroused. A majority of all the votes cast is required to carry either amendment.

This great uprising of the moral and religious elements of the population on the subject of temperance will help the Republican party in the election. It calls out the reserves whose participation in an election is almost sure to give the Republicans a victory. Moreover the Republican party gave the temperance people the opportunity they are improving, and in general it has favored restrictions of the liquor traffic while the Democratic party has placed itself in the position of opposing all restriction and courted on alliance which has been openly formed with the manufacturers and traders in liquors, the distillers and the saloon keepers. The party had sins enough to answer for before; but by this action it has forfeited the confidence of all those who do not favor free trade in rum. Judge Hoadly, its candidate for Governor, is smirched with the notorious corruption of the State convention. In the city of Cincinnati the party is split by the quarrel between McLean and Pendleton. Hoadly has been sick and out of the State for a month. The The Republicans, on the other hand, have been singularly fortunate and harmonious, and they confidently expect to elect Judge Foraker, Governor and the balance of the State ticket, with a legislature that will retire Senator Pendleton at the end of his term.

Judge Dixon, in a letter accepting the Republican nomination for governor of New Jersey, announces that he shall not resign his place upon the bench pending the election. It was at first expected that he would resign and stump the state, but the advice of leading Repuublicans and lawyers from all quarters of the state has poured in against his resigning. He says that he ought not lightly to abandon his public trust for the purpose of seeking another. If he should resign, Gov. Ludlow would appoint a Democrat in his place, thus making the supreme court stand seven Democrats to only two Republicans. In a former election, when Judge Beadle ran for governor, this same question was raised, discussed and decided by Judge Beadle's retaining his place on the bench till he was elected governor, the people approving this course by giving him a good majority.

The Democratic nominee for mayor of Indianapolis, in his speech accepting the nomination, said: "I will do my best, if elected, to fill the office of mayor in a way that will bring success to the Democratic party." The Republican nominee, in his speech of acceptance said: "If I am elected I will endeavor to discharge the duties of the office for the best interests of the city, believing that what is for the best interests of the entire community is best for every portion of that community." In these two expressions the great difference between the characters of the two parties is pretty plainly shown. The Democratic nominee spoke bluntly the average Democratic idea; the Republican nominee expressed the average Republican idea.

One of the amusing episodes of the recent Massachusetts prohibitory convention was the disciplining of the Rev. Mr. Cheever of Worcester, a member of the State committee, concerning whom the dreadful rumor had got about that he meant to vote the Republican ticket this year. He was called on to define his position. He said he had been a prohibitionist "from infancy," while the Republican convention was in session he was praying that a temperance man might be nominated; he believed George D. Robinson was nominated in answer to his prayers, and he thought prohibitionists should vote for him. At this point of his discourse the Rev. Mr. Cheever was first called to order and then turned out.

Butler is evidently preparing either to stuff the ballot boxes or miscount the votes in Boston. There is no other plausible explanation of Mayor Palmer's refusal to appoint as election inspectors the gentlemen selected by the Republicans.

It appears that Leon Abbett, the Democratic candidate for Governor of New Jersey, was the author of a motion in the Assembly of that State to strike the name of Abraham Lincoln from a vote of thanks at the time of the capture of Richmond.

The Boston Post hastens to reply to a correspondent who asks what it thinks of Butler's Tewksbury pamphlet that it thinks it "coarse, nasty and nauseating," and that it is "calculated to do great injury to the Democratic ticket."

The debt reduction for September was $15,000,000. Even the Greenbackers will think that this is paying the debt fast enough.

The surplus revenue of the Dominion last year amounted to $7,000,000, a greater surplus than has been realized during any one year in the Dominion's history. A protective tariff is largely responsible for it.

Ex-Senator Thurman has finally made up his mind that he is in favor of a tariff for revenue with incidental protection.

An Attempt to Capture George Washington.

Clinton, it is known, made many attempts to capture Washington, believing that if he was taken prisoner the war would be brought to a successful close. He well knew that he was the pillar of fire by night and the pillar of cloud by day to the struggling patriots, and that the news of his being a prisoner in the hands of the British would not only totally dishearten the impoverished colonists, but palsy the energies of their friends in the English Parliament. How many schemes were attempted we shall probably never know. We only know that Washington received many letters warning him of his danger. He doubtless had many narrow escapes, the plans of the enemy being thwarted either by the warning that he received, or from unforeseen circumstances—all the work of that Divine Providence that from his first entrance into the army had watched over him. That he has not left a record of some of these in detail is not very singular, when we remember the character of the man; but the following has been handed down by the inhabitants residing near these head-quarters at the time. No road at this period ran along the river from Newburg to South Windsor, though both are on its shore, and only a mile apart. A bold bluff one hundred feet or more high made an almost precipitous descent to the river nearly the entire way, rendering the construction of a road a very difficult and expensive work. But midway between the two places the Quassaick Creek burst through this heavily wooded bluff, and plunged into the river between banks more than a hundred feet high, revealing a dark and gloomy gorge.

Two or three hundred feet from the shore this chasm swung back on one side in a huge semicircle, inclosing a sweet little valley which is known as the Vale of Avoca. In this secluded valley lived a man named Ettrick. Behind his house the hill rose gradually, and stretched away to the west, the chasm gradually lessening in depth, till at the distance of half a mile or more it became so low and narrow that it was spanned by a bridge. Though Ettrick's house lay within short cannon-shot of Washington's headquarters, and in a line almost directly south, and about the same listance from the river, it required a circuit of nearly two miles to reach it by road. The tide set up the creek close to the dwelling, and a boat from it could be sent by strong rowers into the Hudson in five or ten minutes. In an hour or more it could be carried into the gorge of the Highlands, and in less than an hour after to the British ships that lay below West Point. In fact, a boat well-manned could get within British protection in less than two hours after leaving Ettrick's house. It will be seen, therefore, that if Washington could be decoyed into Ettrick's house and captured, he would be under the British guns before ever he was missed at his own headquarters. The plan was to have a strong guard come up in the night and lie concealed in this gloomy gorge, and seize Washington while at dinner in Ettrick's house, to which he had been invited. Ettrick professed to be a warm patriot, though some looked on him with suspicion. Whether he was really a traitor from sympathy with the Tories or became corrupted by British gold is not known. He was visited stealthily by Tories, and his daughter overheard them talking together one day about taking Washington prisoner. Soon after, her father told her that he had invited Washington to dine with him on a certain day. She immediately connected this with the conversation she had overheard, and suspected it was a plot to capture Washington. She at once sought a private audience with the latter, and telling him her suspicions, requested him not to come to dinner. He, however, determined to ascertain definitely if there was such a black-hearted traitor within his lines, and within hearing of the bugles of his own head-quarters. So on the day appointed he rode around to Ettrick's, but ordered a detachment of his Life-Guard, dressed in English uniform, to follow at some distance, and never lose sight of the house, and at about the dinner hour, which was late, to march up to it. They did so, and Ettrick, mistaking them for the British and Tories, stepped up to Washington, and laying his hand on his shoulder, said, "General, I believe you are my prisoner!" "I believe not, sir; but you are mine!" was the reply, as the Life-Guard filed rapidly into the room. He was immediately marched off and locked up. This threw the daughter in a paroxysm of grief. She had not anticipated such a result. She had given no possible information—simply told her suspicions to Washington, and asked him to stay away from dinner. She did it to save Washington and spare her father, but not to bring the latter to the gallows; and she besought the former not to repay her fidelity by hanging her father. If it had been a personal matter he could easily have forgiven it, but the blow was aimed at his country, and that he would not have forgiven in an only son. Still, every instinct of his heart revolted against rewarding so cruelly the devotion of the daugter. His whole noble, chivalric nature was aroused when she besought him not to repay her for saving his life by devoting her to a fate infinitely worse than death. It was an act that it was simply impossible for him to do, and though terribly pressed by the sense of duty to his country, he resolved to keep the whole matter secret, except, perhaps as he consulted with a few personal friends, and released the traitor on the condition of his leaving the country. This he accepted, and fled to Nova Scotia, and nothing is known of his subsequent fate.—J. T. Headley, in Harper's Magazine for October.

Germania.

Description of the Great National Monument dedicated last Friday.

The Niederwald, on which the monument is erected, is over 700 feet high, and the spot chosen overlooks one of the most beautiful points on the river—where the troops marched past into the war, and where King William, returning from France, "saluted the Rhine for the first time as Kaiser." The monument attains the height of 110 feet, consisting of substructure, a quadrangular stone base containing relief, pedestal and the figure of Germania, the latter being about 33 feet in height. In front of the substructure there are sculptured the figures of Father Rhine and the nymph Moselle. The Moselle is represented by a young woman of ideal beauty, who is receiving from the hands of Father Rhine a large watch horn, which, presumably, she is to use as a means of call for assistance in case she should be again attacked. On this substructure rests the broad base of the monument, in the front of which the great relief representing the Emperor and his generals is let in. At either side are figures, the one symbolizing "War" being represented by a young Roman warrior, with drawn sword, calling his comrades together by the sound of the trumpet to defend the threatened fatherland. The other statue is an angelic figure representing "Peace." The grand relief in front of the base is a marvellous piece of work. On it are represented the Kaiser William on horseback surrounded by all the German kings and princes who declared him Emperor, and the statesmen, generals, and other representatives of the army who assisted at the scene in Versailles. This relief is composed of no less than 133 life-size figures, of which 120 are accurate likenesses. Behind the Emperor is a dais, on the steps leading up to which stand the German kings, grand dukes and princes who, while not present with the army or at Versailles, gave their support to the declaration of the empire. The row of princes begins with King Ludwig II. of Bavaria, and ends on the right with old King John of Saxony. In the foreground, immediately to the left of the Emperor, is the Iron Chancellor; to the right the silent Moltke. Near Count Moltke is a group composed of Prince Frederick Charles, commander of the Second Army, and the Crown Prince Albert of Saxony. The two other reliefs on the sides of the square represent "The Departure for the War" and "The Return from the War." The pedestal is crowned by the imposing form of Germania, a figure of classic beauty. Her left arm rests on the imperial sword, while in her right she holds up the imperial crown which she has won. From her shoulders hangs the imperial mantle, richly embroidered with eagles and precious stones. Two powerful eagles support the throne from which Germania seems to have just arisen. The face of Germania is strikingly beautiful, dignified and earnest. The model for it was the sculptor's own child, whose face he idealized in the national monument. The figure was completed by Schilling four years ago. It was cast at the foundry of Herr von Miller, at Munich. Seven hundred and fifty hundredweights of bronze were required for the statue, old German cannon furnishing the material employed, for it had been ordered that no French guns should be used.

Weapons of War.

An Hour Among the Curious Things in the War Department Museum

[Washington Republican.]

One of the most interesting government exhibits in this city is, perhaps, that in the ordnance museum, on Seventeenth street northwest. The long room is conveniently arranged, and the display consists of many instruments of war, both ancient and modern. At one end of the hall stand two figures representing ancient Japanese soldiers. They are clad in the original suits of armor, of steel, brass, and gutta percha, which were worn hundreds of years ago, and are accompanied by long and desperate looking spears. The face of the soldier is half concealed by a hideous looking mask, while the whole effect is horrible in the extreme. The Japanese believed in those days that the more hideous they could make themselves appear the less fighting they would have to do; that frightening the enemy was better than fighting him. There were other Japanese curiosities on exhibition, consisting of heavy copper hats, terrible looking masks, decorated spears, swords, &c. In the same portion of the room was a curiosity of more modern use, but of no less interest. It was one of the mule battery guns used during the late rebellion in this country, and which provoked an American poet to write the song beginning:

"Bring on your jackass battery."

The gun is about four feet long and is attached to a queer looking saddle. The mule battery gun never did any serious damage to the enemy. It was fired from the backs of those high kicking animals, and many ludicrous scenes are reported to have occurred shortly after the command to begin firing was given. The battlefield of Petersburg, Va., contributes two bullets, union and confederate, which met and fused in midair. In the same case with the war-wedded bullets is a box of beautifully carved dominoes, made by a French prisoner of war who was incarcerated during the wars of Napoleon I. in the Pennycuick prison in Scotland, from the beef bones of his rations, with no tools save a blade made by himself from a piece of iron. The other articles are a "gorget," or queer shaped silver decoration, supposed to have been worn by a British officer at the battle of Bloody Run, in 1763. It was found by Gen. Poe, in Michigan, several years ago. A steel cuirass and heavy brass helmet worn by French cuirassiers at the battle of Sedan, during the Franco-German war, are also kept here. These articles were considered proof against bullet and saber, but they were evidently no match for the penetrating Prussian needle gun or the strong arm of the German cavalryman. The cuirass was pierced by a bullet from the former, killing its wearer, and the helmet shows a deep saber cut diagonally across it, which fractured the dashing cuirasseur's skull. Since France has become a republic the above articles are no longer used. During her monarchical days they were worn by the flower of the French cavalry. Another armor of more ancient origin reposes quietly against the wall near the above. It is complete, and is composed of a series of steel scales. It was worn by some stern old knight early in the seventeenth century, and bears date of 1610 engraved upon the breast in queer looking hieroglyphics.

There is also a collection of old cannon. Some of them were presented to the young republic by Gen. Lafayette and others, of brass finish, which were captured from the English works at Yorktown and Saratoga. Then there are several experimental breech loading cannon made by the confederates at Jackson, Miss., and a pair of confederate Williams or "long Tom" cannon used upon small boats during expeditions up the bayous and through the marshes of the gulf states. Jeff Davis's rifle is another item of interest. It was carried by him during the closing days of the war, and finally captured with him and his petticoats. There is also an old English mortar howitzer, made during the reign of George II, and captured at the battle of Saratoga by the provincials, and a musket from the British man-of-war, Somerset. The Somerset was wrecked off Point Race, Cape Cod, during the war of 1812. The crew were taken prisoners by the inhabitants of the cape, and the musket was found in the water not many years ago by a fisherman. It was rusted through and through, and has a growth of shells and stone upon its long, grim barrel. Here is an ancient form of a matchlock gun, captured by Japanese troops in 1874, and supposed to be hundreds of years old. This piece was presented to the United States government by Col. James R. Wasson, the defaulting paymaster, who was at the time of its capture second lieutenant 4th United States cavalry, and in Japan on a visit. A small Arab musket of antique origin, which was fired by means of a slow match and powder pan. A large bombshell from the battle of New Orleans in 1815, and steel cross bows and arrows used in Spain, many years ago, are also objects of interest. A section of an oak tree, three feet in circumference, cut down by minnie balls at the battle of Spottsylvania Court House, during the late war, always attracts the attention of everybody. The oak stood behind earthworks which had been captured by the union troops. The confederates made a desperate attempt to recapture their works, during which the tree was cut down by their bullets. The powder horn used by Capt. Jack, the Modoc chief, during the lava bed war; a rusty bayonet and large English horse pistol from the battlefield of Waterloo; the bullet which destroyed Col. R. L. Kilpatrick's right arm at the battle of Chancellorsville; samples of confederate explosive bullets, which were calculated to blow a man into smithereens; a smoking pipe made in the trenches before Sebastopol during the siege by an English soldier, and a section of a confederate whistling shot which shrieked through the air at Gettysburgh like aerial demons, are also objects of interest.

Apropos to the visit of the Corean embassy to this country, there is on exhibition in the ordnance museum the spear by which Lieut. McKee, U. S. N., lost his life during the Corean raid. It is a long and desperate looking weapon, with a soiled piece of white rag attached to the staff, just below the spear head. The rag was displayed by the Coreans as a flag of truce, and when Lieut. McKee responded to it by approaching the party he was stabbed repeatedly by its bearer. The razor-like spear still bears the stain of the gallant lieutenant's life blood.

Another article of equal interest is the battle flag of a South Carolina confederate regiment, captured by a Pennsylvania brigade at Malvern Hill. This tattered relic was found standing upright in a breastwork composed of the dead bodies of South Carolina soldiers. The regiment, in its desperation to hold the position, and having dwindled down to a mere handful of men under the effects of a severe enfilading fire of artillery and musketry, piled their dead in long rows and delivered their fire from behind the ghastly works.

Indian ingenuity is shown by a carbine shell reloaded by an Apache brave in Arizona. It is supposed that the Indian possessed a carbine, and his amunition having given out, he reloaded several empty shells. The bullet was evidently chipped out with a knife and the cap was ingeniously placed in position.

Among the shots are sections of chilled iron conical shaped projectiles weighing 750 pounds each. They were manufactured for the English government by a Boston firm, and afterward split open to exhibit the grain of the metal and their general quality. These shots, it is said, were intended to penetrate a 10-inch steel armor.

An assortment of mitrailleuses and Gatlin guns attract much attention; also two large round shot which were fired at an iron target by this government during experiments a few years ago. The latter are pointed out to strangers by guides as the first shots fired at Fort Sumter by the confederate gunners.

The entire display is one of great interest and gives an adequate idea of the rapid advance in the science of warfares from the sixteenth century to the present time.

Concerning Muck.

BY HENRY REYNOLDS, M. D.

The value of muck depends principally upon the organic matter and nitrogen which it contains. Its composition varies widely according to the kind of plants which contributed to its formation, and the amount of soil or sand which became mixed with it. Thirteen samples of muck, thoroughly dried, analyzed at the Connecticut Experiment Station during the year 1880 were found to contain from 22 to 90 per cent. of vegetable substances, from .26 to 4.7 per cent. of lime; and 5.7 to 2.4 of nitrogen. This shows that the best sample of muck, after exposure to the air and frost, so that about 35 per cent. of water would be retained in it, would contain 1.76 per cent. of lime and 1.56 of nitrogen, while the poorest sample would contain .31 per cent. of lime and .62 per cent. of nitrogen.

According to an analysis of Dr. Voelders', barn manure contains about .64 per cent. of nitrogen, or only about the same that the poorest of thirteen specimens of muck examined at the Connecticut Experiment Station contained, while the best sample of muck contains nearly three times as much nitrogen as the barn manure. Nitrogen, it should be remembered, is one of the most valuable elements of plant food, being reckoned at from 15 to 20 cents per pound. The nitrogen in the muck is not as valuable, pound for pound, as that contained in barn manure. It is less soluble and less available for the use of plants. The nitrogen found in muck is in a condition similar to that found in the soil. It needs to be changed into soluble forms and made available for use. Fermentation is a ready means of effecting this object, and one of the easiest ways of accomplishing it is to compost the barn manure with one, two or three times its bulk of muck and allow the whole to heat and decompose. In this way a large amount of excellent compost can be prepared, and when applied to the ground good results will be obtained.

If the muck is used in the barn and stable to absorb the liquid manure, and is then piled in a heap, it will ferment, and a portion of its nitrogen be brought into an available condition for the use of farm crops. Muck may also be freely used in the hog pens, about the sink spouts and wherever there are liquids to be absorbed or manure to be composted with. Wherever it is used, it is advantageous to allow the whole mass to heat and decompose for a while before applying to the soil. When used as a top dressing for grass land or for mulching fruit trees the nitrogen of the muck will gradually become soluble by the action of the air, and thus be made serviceable for the use of plants.

The organic matter contained in muck is of considerable value, especially for application to fields which have been cultivated so long that there is a deficiency of decaying organic matter in the soil. When applied to such soils it performs an important service in rendering soluble some of the large amounts of insoluble potash, phosphoric acid and nitrogen which all soils contain. The decay of its organic matter forms carbonic acid gas which, mingled with water, becomes a powerful solvent of the reserved stores of plant food. The nearer the muck is to the surface the more rapidly will it decay, and of course the greater will be its solvent effect.

Throughout the Eastern States there are extensive deposits of muck, much of which is of excellent quality. Nearly every farm has a deposit, either within its limits or within one or two miles. These deposits seem to be a reserved source of fertility provided by nature to aid the farmer in his work of making the earth fruitful, and they should not be neglected. If dug and allowed to dry a large load can be hauled by a yoke of oxen or a span of horses, thus reducing the cost of transportation. By drying it, the bulk will be so reduced that any one can afford to haul it considerable distances, rather than not to have it. It is hoped that more attention will be given to the use of the muck deposits for the improvement of the farms.

Livermore Falls, Me.

The Farmer as a Man.

BY HENRY REYNOLDS, M. D.

In the hard struggle for "the survival of the fittest" which is going on, the farmer should not lose sight of the fact that he is a man and that his manhood is more precious than wealth. No man should dispose of any part of his manhood in exchange for any kind of merchandise. No one should do that which will make him feel one whit less a man, however good a bargain he can drive by making the sacrifice. Any price however great is too cheap at which to sell any part of a man's self-respect. Man stands at the head of created beings, and as such bears the mark of the especial favor of his Creator. He is capable of great development and possesses wonderful capacities. Although it is scarcely possible for man to attain to perfection, yet he may attain to such a degree of perfection as to render himself worthy of the highest esteem. Who does not respect and esteem the thoroughly good man? Even the vicious and degraded recognize and respect the good man. Goodness compels the reverence of us all. We are so constituted that we can not refrain from approving and esteeming that which is good and noble in others.

The farmer is favorably situated for the development of the highest qualities of his manhood. He is separated from contaminating influences of the great cities and large towns, and is brought into contact with nature and may commune with her day after day. He is constantly reminded, as he turns over the soil, that the Creator made the earth; and as he watches the succession of the seasons and all the changes of the weather he realizes that an all powerful ruler is at the head of the universe. The farmer should indeed be the man of exalted and pure thought, and day by day should develop more and more of those qualities which characterize perfect manhood. He should commune with nature, come into sympathy with the beasts of the field and the birds of the air and be their lord of creation. Envyings and hatreds should find no place in his heart, but give place to generous magnanimity and brotherly love for all mankind. Emerson has well said: "The farmer stands well with the world. Plain in manners as in dress he would not shine in palaces; he is absolutely unknown and inadmissible there; living or dying he shall never be heard of in them; yet the drawing-room heroes put down beside him would shrivel in his presence—he solid and inexpressive, they expressed to gold-leaf. But he stands well in the world,—as Adam did, as an Indian does, as Homer's heroes, Agamemnon or Achilles do. He is a person whom a poet of any clime—Milton, Ferdusi, or Cervantes would appreciate as being really a piece of old nature, comparable to sun and moon, rainbow and flood, because he is, as all natural persons are representative of nature as much as these." To develop the noble qualities that are within him should be the aim of every farmer. The wealth which he acquires he can not carry with him when he goes hence; but his growth in goodness will be his personal possession which he can carry with him into eternity.

Brief Jottings.

Cold and bright yesterday. Mercury 35° at sunrise, 48° at noon, 45° at sunset; wind NNE.

There was a large demand for the new two-cent stamps at the post office yesterday. The design is the head of Washington, in profile, from Houdon's bust, being placed on a plain tablet, and above the oval surrounding the head are the words "United States Postage," and underneath the tablet are the words 'Two Cents."

The fall arrangement on the Ogdensburg went into effect yesterday. The through train has not been changed, leaving here at 8.25 a. m., as formerly. Only one afternoon train will be run, leaving here at 3 o'clock and going to Fabyans. The train from Fabyans is due here at 10.45 a. m., and the through train at 10 p. m.

Stephen C. Stanford was not, as reported, a member of Bosworth Post, G. A. R. He was a soldier in the war of the rebellion, but never joined the Grand Army.

Rt. Rev. Bishop Healy preached at St. John's Roman Catholic church, Bangor, Sunday forenoon, and in the afternoon administered the sacrament of confirmation to several hundred children.

It is said Howard Knowlton will have a great skating rink corner of Federal and Pearl streets.

The usual consecration service at the Mission this afternoon, at 3 o'clock. Also Gospel temperance meeting at 7.45 o'clock. All are invited.

A young lady named Ellis had one of her feet badly crushed by the wheel of an ice-cart, on Portland street, Saturday morning.

A sow, belonging to L. A. Safids, gave birth at his farm at Falmouth Foreside, to five pigs. The first one born had a head perfectly representing an elephant, with the flapping ears, the trunk, the mouth beneath the trunk, indeed all the characteristics of an elephant. The animal lived about fifteen minutes. It has been placed in the Natural History rooms.

Capt. Hall, so long with Ryan & Kelsey, has been appointed agent for the Maine Steamship Company, with headquarters at New York.

Mrs. M. L. Minot, representing the Woman's Missionary Society work in the South, is expected to speak at St. Lawrence street church this evening.

Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Gibson, of the Preble House, have gone on a trip to Canada.

There were two arrests for drunkenness and one for drunkenness and disturbance last night.

Attention is called to the changes in the advertisement of the Portland, Bangor and Machias steamers.

A Hard Case.

The Express says: "The other day Mr. A. M. Sawyer, the agent of the society with the endless name found the horse of Isaac Richardson in an old shed in Dow's Court, without anything to eat and with no protection from the weather but a broken and leaky roof. He took the animal to a stable and had him cared for, and then hunted up Richardson who was on a protracted spree. Richardson was taken before the court and fined $10. He still kept up his spree and Mr. Sawyer went up to the place in Dow's Court to see if anything else was suffering from lack of care. The place where Richardson, who is a single man, lives with his horse, dogs and hens, beggars description. The Express called there yesterday and must confess that it has never seen any place where a human being lived so filthy. In two rooms in an old shanty lives this man Richardson with several dogs and about sixty hens. The floors, the windows and what few pieces of furniture there are in the rooms, show that the dogs and hens have it their own way in the house. Richardson is a hen pedler, and when sober makes three or four dollars a day. But he spends his money for drink and neglects his horse and hens while on a spree. The horse he unharnessed the other night and let loose. The animal strayed into the grounds of Mr. Malcom Hammond and was taken by the police to an old shed and tied. Mr. Sawyer then took him to a stable and if Richardson don't claim him he will be sold at auction. His actual cash value is about $10.

Teachers' Association.

At the first monthly meeting for the school year of the Portland Teachers' Association, last night, the following officers were elected:

President—Supt. Thomas Tash.
Vice President—Dr. D. H. Dole.
Secretary—Miss Amanda I. Boothby.
Treasurer—Miss Adriana M. Carleton.
Executive Committee—A. B. Morrill, H. Patten, O. M. Ford, Miss Ellen C. Williams, Miss Isabella Garvin, Miss Sarah M. Taylor.
Reporter—Miss Mary E. Plummer.

Supt. Tash presented his report for September. He says the average number of scholars belonging to the schools is as follows:

High School	315
Grammar Schools	1210
Primary Schools	3350
Total	4875

Average number attending,		per cent.
High School	310	98
Grammar School	1172	97
Primary Schools	3212	95.8
Total	4694	av. per ct. 96.2

The whole number of pupils entering the schools for first two weeks is 5123, about 200 more than for the same period last year.

A brief discussion of the most practical methods of teaching arithmetic, in which drill in the fundamental rules was insisted on, was participated in by President Chase and Supt. Tash.

Portland Dry Dock.

At a meeting of the stockholders of this company, held yesterday afternoon, at the office of Ardon W. Coombs, it was voted to authorize the directors to sell the entire real and personal property of the corporation for the sum of $100,000 upon such terms as the directors might deem to be for the best interests of the stockholders; and the president and treasurer were authorized to execute, in behalf of the corporation, the necessary deed of the property in case any sale should be made.

At a meeting of directors, held immediately after the adjournment of the stockholders' meeting, the president and treasurer were directed to execute an option, under seal, to the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, for the sale of the property of the corporation, at $100,000, the option to continue three months.

It is understood that the property of the Dry Dock Company, provided it is purchased by the Canadian Pacific, and provided the city sells or leases its rights in the Portland and Ogdensburg road, will be used and improved by the Canadian Pacific for terminal facilities.

Portland and Ogdensburg.

The sale of excursion tickets through the Notch was discontinued on Saturday, 29th ult., as it was expected that the hotels at Crawford's and Fabyan's would be closed thereafter for the season. It is understood, however, that excursionists can be accommodated at Crawford's or Fabyan's a few days longer, and the Portland and Ogdensburg railroad have concluded to resume the sale of the special excursion tickets at $2.50 during such time. Parties intending to make this excursion this season should not delay, as the special rate will not be available, probably, after the present week.

CITY GOVERNMENT.

Regular Monthly Meeting of the City Council—Appointment of a Committee to Negotiate with the Canadian Pacific—Order Appropriating $5,100 Additional for Chestnut Street Schoolhouse Passed—Another Proposition for the Ogdensburg.

The regular monthly meeting of the City Council was held last evening and considerable important business transacted.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen.

PETITIONS REFERRED.

Of Andrew Bennett to erect new wooden building on Clark and Pine streets.

Of Julia A. Drinkwater to erect a wooden building on Lincoln street.

Of Geo. F. Gould for Arthur W. Pierce to erect a wooden building corner Cumberland and Grove streets.

Of J. D. Dexter to erect a wooden building on Brackett street.

Of Thomas Rafferty for damages by laying out of Sheridan street and to establish boundaries of his lot.

Of A. McDonald for abatement of sewer assessment.

LICENSES GRANTED.

Of C. B. Stowers as a fish dealer.

Of W. H. Stone for permission to maintain a steam engine and boiler corner Elm and Kennebec streets.

Of Frank Curtis for entertainments at Portland Theatre.

Of Chas. E. Marwick for theatre at 104 Exchange street.

Of Geo. H. Bailey for $10.10 damage to fence on Fourth of July.

Of High School Cadets for a new armory.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

The committee on health asked for extension of time to consider the matter of Commercial street wharf dock.

Same committee reported that the matter of floating baths be referred to the next City Council.

The committee on police reported that they had authorized the City Treasurer to pay the Woman's Christian Temperance Union $200 toward paying the salary of police matron.

The joint standing committee on laying out new streets, to whom was referred the petition of D. W. Mannix and others, praying that Federal street, between India and Mountfort, be widened, asked for further time, which was granted.

The joint standing committee on public instruction, to whom was referred, with power, the petition of S. M. Watson, librarian of the Public Library, for a copy of the city plans for the use of said library, reported that they had authorized the City Treasurer to give to the Public Library one set, unbound, of said plans.

The joint standing committee on laying out new streets, reported that on the 15th day of August they laid out on Long Island a new street, to be called Long Island avenue. This report was accepted, and it was ordered that said Long Island avenue become one of the public streets of the city.

ORDERS PASSED.

That the committee on public buildings be instructed to remove the gun house, now standing on Gilman street, to the adjoining lot of land belonging to the city.

That the committee on unimproved real estate be instructed to withhold from sale the lot of land to which the committee on public buildings shall remove the gun house, now standing on Gilman street, until such time as a suitable place shall be prepared for receiving and caring for the guns now stored therein.

That the lot on Peaks' Island, in front of the school house, offered for sale for $34.50, consisting of 1,500 feet, be purchased by the city on the receipt of a satisfactory deed of the property, and the approval of the city civil engineer to the survey of the same.

That the committee on fire department be authorized to revise the rules and regulations of said department as the present laws are not adapted to the work of the department at the present day.

That no train of more than twenty cars be run through or over the streets of the city unless by special permission from the authorities, and that the City Marshal attend to the enforcement of this order. The order was subsequently modified by an amendment that the Marshal report back to the board.

That the lot of land on west side of Gilman street, numbered 88 on city plans, be sold to Samuel H. Jose for fifty cents a foot.

CHESTNUT STREET SCHOOLHOUSE.

Relative to this matter the following order was read:

That the sum of $5100 be appropriated, in addition to the sums heretofore appropriated, viz: $4700, and $2500 for the payment of alterations and repairs on the Chestnut street schoolhouse, and charged to the contingent fund.

The matter provoked a little discussion.

Alderman Melcher asked the Mayor if the bidders were not responsible. The Mayor gave a negative answer as the bidders were not required to file a bond.

Alderman Melcher then said that he hesitated to vote for this sum. This committee had come twice for more money and when asked if this sum was enough had answered "Yes." He did not like the way this business had been done and should vote to take this sum from the contingent fund under protest.

Alderman Winslow was in favor of the passage of the order.

Alderman Hawkes asked for a detailed report of the expenditures in the matter. The Auditor was summoned but could give no information.

His Honor said he was sorry to see a further sum required. The fact of the matter was that the committee had little idea of the size of the task before them when work was begun. But the work had been well done and was very gratifying. He deprecated any disposition by members of the board to unkindly criticize the efficient committee which had this matter in charge; their services had been given without pay and reward and called for nothing but praise.

The order was then passed.

Papers from the lower board were passed in concurrence.

PORTLAND AND OGDENSBURG RAILROAD.

The Mayor appointed all of the Aldermen as the committee on the part of the upper board to attend to the Ogdensburg Railroad matter.

The following communication, which explains itself, was read by the Mayor:

To the Honorable Mayor, Board of Aldermen and Common Council of the City of Portland:

We respectfully submit that we represent responsible parties who desire to acquire by purchase, or in some other lawful manner, all the interest, rights, powers and privileges owned or controlled by the city of Portland in the property, stock, bonds and obligations of the Portland and Ogdensburg railroad, for which a definite proposition will be made, after the terms of the proposal now under consideration, have been submitted.

In conducting negotiations for the purchase or control of the interest of the city in said railroad, it shall be with the express understanding that the management of the affairs of the road shall remain in, and be under the direction of citizens of Portland who are interested in its growth and prosperity, and that said road shall be maintained and operated for the best interests of the city of Portland, and as an independent road extending to all connecting lines of road now, or hereafter constructed, equal business facilities and uniform rates.

Very respect'y your obedient serv'ts,
NATHAN & HENRY B. CLEAVES.
Portland, Oct. 1, 1883.

GRAND TRUNK.

A communication was read from A. A. Strout, Esq., and accompanying it was one from Joseph Hickson, General Manager.

The letters of Messrs. Hickson and Strout were as follows:

To the City of Portland:

I am requested by the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada, by its general manager, in a letter, a copy of which I hand you herewith, to confer with the city government in relation to the semi-annual contributions, provided by the agreement of the Atlantic & St. Lawrence railroad, to be paid to the commissioners of the sinking fund. Under the statute the commissioners do not feel themselves at liberty to invest these moneys only in securities mentioned in the act of 1868, and these investments will yield only about four per cent., whilst the city indebtedness bears six per cent., and the Grand Trunk, as the lessee of the Atlantic & St. Lawrence railroad, is the loser of the difference. The wish of the Grand Trunk is, to so arrange this matter that these contributions will yield an interest equal to the six per cent., which a like amount of the city debt bears. Several schemes have been discussed by the commissioners and their counsel and myself, and finally the proposition contained in the accompanying letter of Mr. Hickson seems to be without objection if the city shall agree to it.

The balance of the city debt in this behalf, unprovided for by securities and money in the sinking fund is, in round numbers, $297,000. The amount of the semi-annual contributions to be paid before the indebtedness falls due is about $125,000.

The Grand Trunk will place in the hands of the city treasurer as additional security the five per cent. bonds of the Chicago and Grand Trunk Railway Company for an amount which shall be equal with the funds in the hands of the commissioners, to the whole amount of the debt of the city, and will agree to pay the interest on the city's indebtedness as it becomes due and to save the city harmless by reason of its action in the matter. It then asks that the city will not require the payment of the semi-annual contributions above referred to, until the whole debt falls due.

The second issue of the bonds of the Chicago and Grand Trunk Railway Company are secured by mortgage on the railroad forming the Western line of the Grand Trunk Railway of Canada, and the payment of interest on the same is guaranteed by the last named road. In any event the city would be secured in the most ample manner. The action of the city in receiving additional security would not affect the contracts and security it already holds for the payment of its indebtedness.

Will you kindly place these communications before the City Government for such action as they shall deem just and proper in the premises.

MANAGER HICKSON'S LETTER.

MONTREAL, July 26, 1883.

Dear Sir—I have very carefully considered the position of the questions which have arisen in regard to the sinking fund established for the payment of the advances made by the city of Portland to the Atlantic and St. Lawrence Railway Company. After our discussion today I need not enter into details. It is sufficient for the purposes of this letter to say that there is about $280,000 in the Casco Bank at Portland, subject to the order of this Company, which is part of a sum paid to the commissioners of the sinking fund for the redemption of the debt, and which payment was made by the company under legal advice.

It will not serve any practical purpose to enter into the merits of the questions involved in the recent litigation. The company were advised that they were exercising a legal right in making the payment. The Supreme Court of the state has held differently, and the company have only acquiesed in that decision.

I am quite certain that the city authorities will be disposed, notwithstanding what has taken place, to aid the company in making the best of the situation and accomplishing the redemption of the debt on the least onerous terms.

With this end in view, the company desire that you shall confer with the City Government, asking them to assent to the company placing, say with the City Treasurer, bonds of the Chicago and Grand Trunk Railway Company for an amount which shall be equal with the funds in the hands of the Commissioners at Portland, to the total amount of the debt, and to relieve the company from the payment of the semi-annual contributions to the sinking fund.

Of course the company will undertake that the interest payable to the city is met as it matures, and they will also guarantee the city against any loss arising out of this transaction.

The company has funds available at this time to carry out the arrangement I have referred to, and if carried out it will result in these advances carrying an amount of interest equal to the interest on a corresponding amount of the city debt.

I need hardly mention that the city is amply secured already by mortgages upon the property of the Atlantic and St. Lawrence Railway Company, and that the proposal now made will in no way affect the obligations of the company to the city as they exist in the agreement and legislation on the subject, but will practically constitute an additional security, inasmuch as it provides for the payment in advance of the semi-annual contributions to the sinking fund.

Yours truly,
J. HICKSON, General Manager.

To Hon. A. A. Strout, Portland.

The matter was referred to the committee on finance.

In Common Council.

Absent, Messrs. Smith and Jordan. Papers from the upper board received concurrent action.

PORTLAND & OGDENSBURG.

Mr. Noyes offered the following order:

Ordered, The board of Mayor and Aldermen concurring, that the informal communication of William L. Putnam, relative to the Portland & Ogdensburg Railroad Company, be referred to a joint special committee consisting of the Mayor, chairman of the board of aldermen, president of the common council, and such other members of this board as the president shall designate, with such as the aldermen may join, which committee is authorized to receive, consider and investigate all propositions for the lease or sale of the Portland & Ogdensburg railroad, or of the city's interest therein, investigate all facts relating thereto, and report to the Council such orders, contracts or leases, or in such other way as such committee may deem proper for action of the Council thereon.

The order originally read, a committee of six, but was amended by Mr. Fogg, without objection from Mr. Noyes, so that the president could appoint as many as he pleased. The order was passed and sent up, and Messrs. Turner, Wilson, McAloney, Fogg, Marr and Noyes appointed on the part of this board. The aldermen, by appointment of the mayor, joined their full board.

A communication from Nathan & H. B. Cleaves, in reference to the Ogdensburg railroad, will be found in the proceedings of the aldermen, and was referred in concurrence.

THE CHESTNUT STREET SCHOOLHOUSE.

When the order appropriating $5,100 additional for the Chestnut street schoolhouse had been read, Mr. Marr called for light on the subject from the committee.

Mr. Prince said that at a former meeting he was asked if he thought the sum of $2,500, then asked for, would complete the building. He said he did not. He was told it would take about $3,300 to $3,500, and that sum did not include the steam heating. He claimed it was an impossibility for any one to take a building at its foundation, tear it inside out and then tell accurately what it will cost to repair it, or rather make what is virtually a new building of it. He claimed the committee had tried to do the work for the city as economically as possible and at the same time make their work thorough. He thought the job had been done as cheap as it could have been done by contract.

Mr. Turner asked how it happened the figures were changed from $4,700 before the committee to $5,100 before the Council.

Mr. Prince said he thought the gentleman knew the difference was caused by the architect's bill, which had come in since.

Mr. Kelsey asked if the bills were all in.

Mr. Prince responded affirmatively.

Mr. Fogg asked if the same price had been paid the masons and carpenters as are paid by private parties.

Mr. Prince replied they had been paid 25 per cent. less.

Mr. Marr asked if there was any bill for overseeing the work besides that of the architect.

Mr. Prince said it was understood in the committee he was to be paid for superintending the job, but he hadn't sent in any bill and shouldn't receive a cent.

Mr. Marr then said he thought the expenditure of $4,700, before the passage of an order appropriating such money, was in defiance of the ordinances and should be discountenanced. This bill was for a school-house for our children and therefore he should vote for the order, but the fact that this expenditure was for a school-house did not do away with the irregularity of this expenditure.

Mr. Turner, from the committee, then called attention to the fact that when he ascertained the committee was going ahead to repair the school-house in advance of the appropriation and he learned that such action was in violation of the ordinances, that he had a special meeting of the City Council called so that he could be set right. He had no doubt that Mr. Prince had superintended an excellent job, and, while he didn't think the committee in the beginning had any right to go on and spend more money than was appropriated, yet after the attention of the council was called to the matter and they voted to permit the job to proceed, he thought the bill should be paid.

Mr. Wilson thought a very good job had been done with the money.

Mr. Marr didn't dispute that fact. The question was not whether a good job had been done for the money, but whether a committee should spend money not appropriated in defiance of the ordinances.

On motion of Mr. Lappin the question was put and the order passed, 19 yeas and no nays, and was sent up.

OTHER MATTERS.

Mr. Winchester offered an order for the Treasurer to give S. H. Jose the deed to a lot of land on Gilman street.

The committee on the Ogdensburg was requested to meet at the Mayor's office this morning at 10 o'clock.

Adjourned.

Frightened by a Locomotive.

Patrick McKeown, the hackman, backed his team up to the Grand Trunk depot yesterday morning. Before he had time to alight the horses took fright at the loud puffing of a locomotive in the depot. McKeown lost all control of them and they ran away at a high rate of speed. Shortly the hack struck against a telegraph pole and McKeown was thrown violently to the ground. He clung to the reins and was dragged quite a distance. He was insensible when he was picked up and his face and head were very badly bruised. It is said that the wheel struck his face. The wounded man was taken to his home, where medical advice was procured. Fatal results were feared at first, but later McKeown recovered consciousness and was much better in the afternoon. The hack was not much damaged and the horses were secured without injury.

Great Glove Sale.

Today Owen, Moore & Co. will hold a great sale of gloves, closing out a large lot of ladies' and misses' gloves, at 25 cents. Also a lot of nice desirable street gloves for gentlemen will be sold for one dollar. Mr. E. W. Brooks has taken charge of the gents' glove department and will fit all the hands presented.

Base Ball.

The second game of the five, which the Portland High School nine are to play, came off on the Western Promenade, yesterday. The "Third Class Combination" again defeated the "Fourth Class Nine" by a score of 34 to 17.

Society of Art.

The Portland Society of Art will hold its fall exhibition at the society rooms in Motley Block beginning October 4th, and continuing until the 14th. The exhibition will consist of eighty two portrait engravings in black and white from the extensive and valuable collections of President DeWitt of the Union Mutual Insurance Company. There are forty four celebrated artists represented in the exhibition, their works stretching over a period of two centuries. The members of the society and their friends will not fail to improve the opportunity afforded them to inspect this valuable collection. The catalogues are very attractive, and are a complete guide to the exhibition.

Railway Notes.

The Boston & Maine baggage-masters are circulating a petition for signatures, asking that their wages be raised from $40 and $45 to $45 and $50 per month.

During the month of August the gross earnings of the Eastern were $428,341, which when compared with those of the corresponding month last year, show an increase of $29,603.50.

The Eastern railroad directors have voted to purchase six new locomotives for $8,000 each.

Safe.

The schooner Merrill C. Hart, for whose safety much anxiety has been felt has arrived at this port all right and her cargo of coal is now being discharged at Sargent, Dennison & Co.'s sheds. The vessel was once ashore on her trip and experienced head winds most of the time.
